Feminism in 'The Guide' [R.K. Narayan]

R.K. Narayan is considered as one of leading figures of early Indian literature in English. His full name is [Rasipuram Krishnaswami Narayanaswami]

He is the one who made India accessible to the people in foreign countries - he gave unfamiliar people a window to peep into Indian culture and sensibilities. His simple and modest writing style is often compared to that of the great American author William Faulkner. Narayan came from a humble south Indian background where he was consistently encouraged to involve himself into literature. After finishing his graduation he decided to stay home and write. His work involves novels like "The Guide", "The Financial Man", "Mr. Sampath", "The Dark Room", "The English Teacher", "A Tiger for Malgudi", etc.

Altho Narayan's contribution to the Indian literature is beyond description and the way he grabbed foreign audience's attention for Indian literature is commendable too but he will always be remembered for the invention of Malgudi; a semiurban fictional town in southern India where most of his stories were set. Narayan won numerous accolades for his literary work:

Sahitya Akademi award, Padma Bhushan, AC Benson Medal by the Royal Society of Literature, honorary membership of the American Academy of Arts and Literature, Padma Vibhushan, etc.

* • Childhood & early life: —

- * • He was born in Chennai (Malgudi at Madras) in 1906 in a working class South Indian family. His father Krishnaswami Iyer was a school headmaster and because his father had to be frequently transferred for his job, Narayan spent most of his childhood in the loving care of his grandmother, Parvati.
- * • It was his grandmother who taught him arithmetic, mythology and Sanskrit. He also attended many different schools in Chennai.
- * • His reading habit further developed when he moved to Mysore and there his father's schools library offered him gems of writing from authors like - Dickens, Thomas Hardy, Wodehouse, etc.
- * • In 1926 after complete his university exam. he gained Maharaja College of Mysore.
- * • In 1935, he met a beautiful girl named Rajan. She filled his life with pleasure and sweetness But unfortunately, she died after few years of her marriage, it gave him a great shock and for several years he could not write any novel. He left his world in 2001
